RENEWING THE OLD

The odor control project 'had better work'

There are several good reasons why the North San Mateo County Sanitation District's new $466,000 odor control project, due for completion by late April, had better work, the district Board of Directors was told Monday. They are:

- Neighbors, frustrated and angry for the past three years, will become furious and very hard to deal with;
- Nearby restaurants are concerned about loss of customers because of the odor of sewage permeating their places;
- The Bay Area Air Quality Management Board will be unhappy;
- It could be some time before the next mitigating measure could be tried.

Over a dozen restless Westlake neighbors crowded into the board room at the treatment plant Monday - brought there by a particularly noxious recurrence of the odor problem since last Wednesday - describing the odors from the plant as "nauseating" and "overwhelming."

Janet Grist, manager of the A & W Rootbeer restaurant at Lake Merced and John Daly boulevards, immediately south of the treatment plant, complained that the odor was "unbelievable" at 7:30 a.m. Monday and that it has been driving away customers consistently and making life miserable for her 35 employees. "We know we're losing a substantial part of our business," she said later.

Jim O'Shaughnessy, spokesman for Joe's of Westlake across Lake Merced from A & W, told the board he has seen customers drive into the parking lot, smell the air, and drive away.

He said also that the air conditioner must be turned off at times, making it uncomfortable inside because of the food cooking.

Remarks from nose-holding customers about what's cooking in the kitchen aren't funny, either, he said.

Bill Wade, a neighbor and spokesman for the Westlake Subdivisions Improvement Association, cast off his mild-mannered arguments of past complaints and said he "didn't detect any air of urgency" about stopping the odor and "if it (the current improvement project) doesn't work, then we need a new team."

Richard Grieves, assistant council for BAAQMD, and George Bruschi, that agency's air pollution inspector, said the neighbors have become so frustrated they aren't calling them anymore, as they always have done in the past.

Wade agreed that a what's-the-use attitude has prevailed lately, but if public input is what will do the trick, "we can get you back up to 35 or 40 complaint calls a day," he told the board.

He suggested also that the district should have a progress report ready for each of its twice-montly board meetings until the project is finished and that it find a larger place to meet because "a lot of people will be here."

Grieves added that although the district treatment plant "is a drop in the bucket" in the nine-county Bay Area covered by BAAQMD and that the San Jose treatment plant raw sewage spill got the publicity, because "more people are interested in wildlife," the Daly City plant "generates more heat, light and controversy than any."

He acknowledged a "super-emphasis on wastewater treatment," but added that "People have forgotten that these plants also create odors."

District counsel James Morton jumped to the defense, noting that no federal or state money, such as is paying most of the current project cost, was available for odor control until about 1½ years ago, and that this sanitation district was one of the first to apply for such funds.

District Plant Superintendent Bill Keaney, reported that several efforts of different kinds had been made to control the latest outbreak of odors, with blockages in lines and piping being cleared and automatic controls being adjusted. It appears the situation is returning to normal, he said, adding that the two-stage project of clarifier covers and scrubbing equipment to remove the smells from gas will control the type of problems that arose last week.

District General Manager Peter Archuleta reminded that the contract, let to Monterey Mechanical of San Leandro, called for work to be completed within 100 days, meaning possibly the end of April, depending on which agency's official date of acceptance is accepted.

There will be little activity around the plant for possibly six to eight weeks, because the specialized fiberglass covers for the digesters and scrubber equipment for the centrifuge and bar screen areas must be ordered and manufactured.

"Then for the last 60 days it's like a beehive here with all the equipment arriving," he said.

A third phase to the project is a $328,000 job that would put specially-built fiberglass covers over the secondary clarifiers has been postponed. The Bay Region Water Quality Control Board has refused to approve federal and state funding for it. It told the district recently it thought the first two stages should be completed first. If these measures are effective, the next stage wouldn't be needed.

Living on top of the San Andreas Fault

By HEIDI VAN ZANT
Post Staff Writer

Geologist Dick Lambert calmly steers his car across a small crack in the South San Francisco street.

We have just riden over the San Andreas Fault.

Thousands of people pass over the fault every day without realizing it.

Some of them even live right on top of it.

Lambert, a Skyline College instructor specializing in the San Andreas Fault, does not have to look hard to find homes located within a stone's throw of one of the world's most unique earthquake zones.

At least 200,000 people in Daly City, Pacifica, South San Francisco and San Bruno live uncomfortably close to the 600-mile long fault.

Numerous other California residents also live near the fault that runs from above the Mexican border to the coastal waters near Humboldt, passing through 16 counties.

Experts say that in North San Mateo County, the greatest concentration of people reside in close proximity to the San Andreas Fault. But the news they bear is not all bad.

They note that how close you live to the unpredictable fault is not as critical as what kind of ground your home is built on.

Lambert and others say it is safer to live on bedrock right next to the fault than it is to reside on soft soil a mile away.

The geologist's tour of North San Mateo County reveals that the fault crosses several well-traveled roads, including Skyline Boulevard in San Bruno, Westborough Boulevard in South San Francisco and Highway 1 in Pacifica.

Hundreds of homes in the Westborough, Serramonte and Pacific Manor areas have been built within a half-mile of the huge fault.

Those residents and others from the Bay Area are anxious to know when the "Big One" is going to strike. Of course, no one knows — not even the experts.

Lambert explains that a fault is simply a fracture in the earth's crust. The San Andreas Fault is a fracture that moves sideways, at the rate of at least one inch a year.

Someone standing on one side of the fault during an earthquake would see that the land on the other side of the fracture has moved to the right.

One geological publication notes that there was a ground displacement of up to 13 feet in the vicinity of Skyline Boulevard and Berkshire Drive in San Bruno during the 1906 earthquake.

"It's a fault not usually seen on land," Lambert says. "People really do come from all over the world to study it."

He has been studying the San Andreas crack for several years, and can pinpoint several places in North San Mateo County where motorists unknowingly drive over it every day.

As he travels along Westborough Boulevard near Callan Drive, Lambert quietly remarks: "You'll feel bumps in the road that will tell you where the fault is."

The geologist points to a large pocket of Westborough townhuses built in the 1970s. Those homes are within the fault zone (a one-quarter mile strip surrounding the 1-to-2-foot-wide fault).

He passes by several well-kept homes near Skyline College in San Bruno that would sell for at least $125,000. Lambert says the fault passes through their backyards.

The last time there was an earthquake of high intensity along the San Andreas was in 1906. Lambert believes the most recent earthquake before that occured in the 1830s.

Lambert does not believe the next major earthquake will strike in the Bay Area.

"If you were going to go to Jimmy the Greek, I would place the odds on Southern California first," he says, because the last time there was a major earthquake in Los Angeles was in 1857.

Earl Hart, senior geologist with the California Division of Mines and Geology, is supervising a program to prevent structures from being built on top of traces of active faults.

Under provisions of the Alquist-Priolo Special Studies Zones Act of 1972, buildings that will be occupied cannot be constructed within 50 feet of an active fault trace.

Hart notes that in North San Mateo County the act has not had a great impact because much of the land already is developed.

But in Fremont and Union City, where there still is much available land, the act has been effective, according to Hart.

The San Andreas Fault and its branches were zoned in 1974. Hart says the Serra Fault running through Millbrae and Burlingame also has been zoned.

Most zones are one-quarter-mile wide, but they can be as wide as a mile. New homes proposed to be built in those zones are subject to geologic investigation.

Hart says he visited North San Mateo County in the 1950s when heavy residential development was underway — and he was aghast that homes were being built so close to the San Andreas Fault.

"I thought it was terrible thing, just lot after lot. It's just a matter of percentages of who's going to be over the fault," he says.

But he stresses that how close you live to the fault is not as important as what kind of ground your home is built on.

Structural engineer Henry Degenkolb, who specializes in seismic safety standards, explains there is no such thing as an earthquake-proof home. However, homes can be made earthquake-resistant.

The safest structure to be in during a strong earthquake is a one-story wood-frame home, he says. The least safe would be a building made with adobe or masonry, which can cause much damage when the heavy walls fall.

After a severe earthquake in Long Beach in 1933, Degenkolb says building codes were strengthened to require that foundations be connected to the homes.

Degenkolb, who has seen the massive damage caused by earthquakes in Alaska, Guatamala and Venezuala, predicts there will be considerable structural damage during the "Big One," but not a lot of deaths.

Despite his knowledge of the damage quakes can do, the engineer says he has no concern about his personal safety.

"I'm not worried," he says confidently. "We chase earthquakes."

Geologist Don Biederman, also a Skyline College instructor, suggests that some homes in the Daly City area should be evacuated because of their close proximity to the fault area.

(Several homes already have been moved because of problems with landslides.)

"Many of those homes should never have been built there. It was a flat-out mistake. I would not live there under any circumstances," says Biederman, who lives in Belmont in a home built on bedrock.

Short of relocating people, the geologist says there are several things homeowners can do to make their homes safer.

He says residents should know how to shut off their gas lines after an earthquake, heavy furniture should be kept near the floor (watch what is kept on top of bookshelves that could fall) and water heaters should be tied to the wall.

If there is a strong earthquake (7.0 magnitude or greater) along the San Andreas Fault, he believes there will be "enormous" property damage and a loss of life ranging between 10,000 and 100,000 deaths.

"The 40-and-under generation probably stands a good chance to see the Big One. That's just my guess," he says. "Just cross your fingers."

Jim Tucker

Tucker eyes the Assembly

Daly City Councilman James J. Tucker announced Tuesday morning that he will seek to challenge State Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, for the right to represent the 19th District in the state Assembly.

Tucker, 35, a Republican, said he has decided to run because, "Frankly, I just don't believe the taxpayers of this Assembly District are getting the kind of responsive, honest representation that they are paying for and that they deserve from the incumbent, Lou Papan."

He said Papan's sponsorship of a pay increase for legislators and state employees, his support of a 16 percent increase in the 1979-80 state budget and his vote to override all the governor's cuts in that budget have "shown clearly that he hasn't gotten the message of Proposition 13."

Outfall line still broken

It could be several months before the North San Mateo County Sanitation District's broken wastewater outfall line on the beach at Fort Funston is repaired, the consulting engineer indicated to the district Board of Directors Monday.

The large line, which exits the cliff at Fort Funston and carries the treated effluent several hundred yards along the ocean bottom before sending it out through diffusers, was found broken at the surfline Jan. 17 and since then has been spilling most of its six million gallons per day of effluent onto the beach.

Robert R. Eppler, a Resources Engineering and Management consulting engineer, told the board that the pipe had rotated off its supports and broke at one of the joints. The line won't have to be replaced, but "We should look at some kind of protective structure" to prevent future breaks, Eppler said.

To do that, he suggested that perhaps a special barge now being built near Half Moon Bay could be contracted for to assist with the work. The barge is being built by Granville Construction to handle a similar type of work for the consolidated Sewage Authority Mid-Coastside near Half Moon Bay.

The NSMCSD line broke when the January rainstorms, combined with extremely low tides, washed the supporting sand from under it and left it suspended in mid-air. Since then the sand has been washed back in and the line now must be excavated and somehow kept out of the water while repairs are made.

Eppler also showed slides to point out erosion of the cliff on which the district's concrete outfall support structure was built 15 years ago, and the need for some shoring up there.

In another matter involving Eppler, the board put over for more study an evaluation of present district sewage flows, part of a proposed master plan update. District General Manager Peter Archuleta said the study could cost $9,600 to $18,000.

Eppler said the study could take 60 to 90 days but that the district isn't at the "critical point" yet with its capacity. The board is considering the master plan update because the sewage treatment plant has reached 75 percent of its capacity, and the talk now is that there may have to be some type of allocation of new connections. The remaining two million gallons per day capacity translates to 28,000 more people in the district.

Board Chairman Victor G. Kyriakis said he thought the remaining capacity was "ample for Daly City" but reiterated his concern that the Westborough area of South San Francisco, also served under contract by the district, may grow considerably and bring on problems later.

District Counsel James Morton said the Westborough contract was open-ended now, with a provision that that area contribute to the costs of increasing capacity. But the suspicion has been voiced that there may be nowhere to expand the present treatment plant, now wedged into a corner of Westlake Park.

In other business the board:

- Approved the new position of plant maintenance mechanic, to maintain and repair the treatment plant's mechanical and electrical equipment, at a salary of $1,314 to $1,597 per month;
- Okayed some mid-fiscal year budget adjustments, with no change in the totals but reflecting authorized pay increases and parts and additions to the plant not covered in the original budget.

Striking teachers get a trial date

The so-called "Terra Nova 12" of recent Jefferson Union High School District strike prominence will go to a jury trial Feb. 13 in Northern District Municipal Court on charges stemming from their arrests last Sept. 7, early in the nine-week American Federation of Teachers Local 1481 strike against the district.

The dozen teachers were arrested at Terra Nova High School by Pacifica police when they entered Principal Joe Conway's office to demand that Conway help them with their demands for a new contract with the district.

They were arrested when they refused Conway's order to leave.

They are charged with illegal entry onto a school grounds with intent to interrupt classes, state Penal Code and Education Code violations.

These 12 formed the largest single group of the some two dozen arrests by Pacifica and Daly City police, all within the first four weeks of the nine-week strike. Their arraignment was in September, but trial has been postponed at least twice.

One striker so far has been convicted of strike-related activities. Substitute English teacher John Joseph Gilmore was found guilty last week of trespassing, a state Penal Code violation, in the court of Municipal Judge Margaret J. Kemp, who delayed sentencing until a probation report is received.

Gilmore, who also is one of the Terra Nova 12, was arrested by Daly City police Oct. 1 at the district corporation yard near Jefferson High School.

A contingent of strikers formed a picket line at the corporation yard gate that morning and marched in. All but Gilmore left when told to do so by John J. Angle, at that time the district's director of transportation and who since has left.

Deputy District Attorney Elaine Tipton said six more of the arrested strikers are due in Municipal Court for trial this month, four Feb. 20 and two Feb. 27.

CITIZEN LAUDED

Fred Mizyed is being congratulated by Daly City Assistant Chief of Police Richard Sims, left, for his efforts in spotting two individuals attempting to sell stolen property in his market. "You recognized the property as stolen, used his own money to make the purchase, then notified the police and gave valuable assistance to our officer," said David A. Hansen, chief of police.

Self-centeredness and social consciousness

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

Some social scientists say there are several steps between self-centeredness and social consciousness.

Others say there are only two states: One is either selfish and self-centered or altruistic and interested in the welfare of all.

Few fit neatly into such "either-or" positions. Most of us hold onto an element of self-interest. What we do voluntarily, we do because it pleases us or provides some other intrinsic reward.

It is satisfying to be well known, to have one's opinion respected, even asked for, to be acknowledged as someone who has done something for a group, organization or community.

On the other hand, there is an element of altruism in the social actions of those who seek to serve their communities politically even if cynics do call such altruism simply "enlightened self-interest."

If conditions are good in a society, everyone benefits at one time or another including the individual putting forth the time and effort.

Millbrae City Councilman Til Bertini is one who sees in his public service a chance to change and create conditions to benefit not only himself, his friends and his immediate family, but all the people in Millbrae.

He also recognizes that what is solely good for him may not be in the best interests of the community.

"It's tough to separate (one's) personal experiences and feelings from what's 'good' for the city," Bertini says.

This definition of "public good" is something Bertini wrestles with constantly.

"Each issue must be treated separately," he says, "by considering who are the people immediately affected as well as any long range implications of the issue."

Sometimes the final decision can resolve itself only in monetary terms, "money necessary to keep the system going," as Bertini puts it, referring to the recent community outcry over increased water and sewer charges.

Bertini admits that decisions are hard to make. He tries to listen to both sides of any issue and has advised the public that it can contact him at any time with questions and concerns.

"Unfortunately," he says, "most people want agreement. You can't agree with everyone when a decision has to be made to benefit the entire community."

Bertini's own entrance into politics was in response to a sense of frustration he and many other Millbrae residents felt in "getting a hearing for ideas at City Hall."

In the post-Watergate days marked by public distrust of both elected and appointed officials, Bertini's platform, which promised he would "listen to people," attracted sufficient voter interest to elect him to office in 1974 and re-elect him two years ago.

Since then, Bertini has kept his promise to listen, weighing carefully the public and private comments of constituents. He approves of the policy of public hearings at the planning level, commenting that there is always "positive input."

"Sometimes the emotional atmosphere of a public hearing is not too desirable," he says, "But some things are brought out that can't come through otherwise."

Bertini does admit that, although he "generally knows the direction he will go" when a public hearing begins, his vote is by no means locked-in. Public hearings also allow for code clarification for the benefit of the council as well as the public, Bertini feels. It is important for the community to know where established law blocks an avenue for action.

Bertini deplores the current trend toward citizen non-involvement in political action.

"There is no real commitment to the government process," he says. "People seem satisfied with the status quo, only becoming excited when an issue affects them directly."

He also deplores the current trend seen in the passage of Proposition 13 two years ago which emphasized short term, immediate personal gain.

He comments thoughtfully, "When one starts being selfish about the things that will affect the following generation, society will suffer. America is great because it has provided for the whole of society. On a cyclical basis," he continues, "there is no need for selfishness. Everyone benefits sometime."

•

Bertini enjoys being involved in trying to maintain the quality of city government. He believes that small town government has value because it puts the people close to the politicians.

"Our state legislators could be far more responsive," he says, commenting that they (Senate and Assembly members) could perhaps "listen more effectively" to constituents by "using city governments throughout the state as avenues for two way communication."

Asked if he has personal political aspirations for "higher" office, Bertini comments quite seriously that there are times when his frustration level is so high, he just knows he could do "as good a job or even better" than some county and state officials.

But Bertini recognizes that he has neither a firm inclination nor the financial/political base for such a move.

Bertini has several personal political pointers for those interested in serving their community.

"Be interested," tops the list.

"Learn as much as you can about your community. Attend meetings. Read brochures, reports and whatever appears in the newspapers. Volunteer to be on a city commission. Talk to city officials to find out what is going on." Remarking that usually the only calls City Hall gets are "complaint ones," Bertini advises, "Be inquisitive without carrying an axe to grind."

He concludes, "Expect involvement to take time." Bertini estimates he spends a minimum of 8 to 10 hours weekly reading reports, accumulating information and attending meetings. He spent even more time the first few months in office "bringing himself up to date."

In addition to his direct responsibilities to the city of Millbrae, as a city official Bertini is treasurer for the San Mateo County Convention and Visitors' Bureau. He spends two afternoons a month with that organization's books and attends and reports at quarterly meetings. He is also Millbrae's representative to San Mateo County's Civil Defense and Disaster Committee.

Professionally, Bertini is an industrial arts teacher at Capuchino High School. He also teaches a Saturday morning electronics class at the College of San Mateo.

He enjoys photography, has taught it, and considers it his prime leisure activity, saying that when time permits he would like to pursue it more professionally. He already has a Millbrae business license as a photographer and has done wedding portraits.

The Regent

By ROBIN MOELLER

The January "Student of the Month" award went to Genny Hom, Serramonte student president.

Genny has been involved in student government since her freshman year at Serramonte. The award included going out to Val's for lunch.

SERRAMONTE has had some controversy dealing with the selling of items on campus. District policy states that ony one club can sell during a given time period. The Executive Board at Serramonte, made up of students elected to office last year, hold meetings each Tuesday to take care of their business, which includes approval of petitions submitted from the various clubs at Serramonte for time periods in which to sell items for the profit of their club.

The trouble began when the sophomore class petitioned to sell candygrams and flowergrams, which was approved by the Executive Board. They were last week, however, caught selling various other types of candy before their time allotment.

The Executive Board met two days to resolve the issue. It was decided to fine the sophomore class for the days they sold illegally, but allow them to continue to sell the candy the following week, since there was some confusion in communication.

It also was ruled to allow both the sophomore class and the student store to sell similar items during the same period.

The student store, run by the Executive Board, sells candy every lunch period.

THE DRAMA CLUB'S "Gong Show" auditions were changed from Feb. 12, which is Lincoln's Birthday, to Feb. 11, a Monday.

A Drama Club spokesperson says both students and faculty are welcome to audition.

LAST weekend was a three-day weekend because of the break in the semester. This week starts off the second semester of the 1979-80 school year.

SERRAMONTE will hold light and sound show assembly Feb. 21. A new policy on assemblies has been established.

The policy is that once a student enters an assembly he or she must remain there until the program ends.

There had been some problems in previous assemblies with students leaving before the shows were over.

The Executive Board sponsors all of Serramonte's assembly programs.

The Pepsi Cola Co. will present an assembly March 27 on the history of American dance.

THE sophomore class will be selling heart-shaped candygrams and flowergrams for Valentine's Day.

THERE will be a sophomore junior dance Feb. 15.

THE traditional Cinco de Mayo will be May 5.

A NEW driver's education class started up this semester. The class allows students under age to obtain a driver's permit after passing the class. Seniors have been taken in preference to the other classes, with juniors being taken second in consideration.

Very few sophomores were accepted into the class due to the limited space available. The driver's education class officially started Monday.

BOYS' tennis has started up again.

Girls' teams starting this spring include basketball, gymnastics, badminton and for the first time, swimming, which will meet at the Jefferson pool daily except Thursday.

Serramonte has a permanent Spanish teacher, who began this week.

The semester also will include a course in independent French study.

THE SCHOOL library is tightening up on students who plan to go to the library during lunch.

If a student wants to go to the library during lunch, he or she must pick up at the library before school a pass to be presented to the librarian at lunch time.

THE AUTO shop course has had a temporary teacher since a month or so ago.

Kyriakis to speak

Daly City Mayor Victor Kyriakis and San Mateo County Supervisor Arlen Gregorio are scheduled as speakers for the Feb. 14 membership meeting of The St. Francis Heights Association. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Fernando Rivera Junior High School.

HAWAIIAN HOLIDAY

Westmoor High School's PTA has planned an Hawaiin Holiday dance Feb. 23 at 8:30 p.m. at the Gellert Park Clubhouse, Daly City. This event is Westmoor's annual fund-raiser benefit student activities and projects. President and Mrs. Richard Futrel are chairmen. Music will be by the Gary Chulla Combo, and a buffet will be served at 11 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 each. Serving on the committee will be Caroline Futrell, left, Brenda Broussard, right, and Esther MacRunnells, Alice Trombino, Jesse Brewer, Pat McCormick, Junette Cockerill and Angie Meriano. For reservations contact Westmoor High School, any committee member or telephone 992-4706 or 756-8971.

Affirmative action

"Developing a Knowledge of Affirmative Action" will be offered as an extended education course through Skyline College, San Bruno, Feb. 6 - 20, from 7 - 10 p.m., at Peninsula High School, room 11. The fee for the three Wednesday sessions is $30.

Roger Winston, a human relations specialist for the San Mateo Union High School District, will provide definitions and discuss the process involved in understanding the concepts of affirmative action. Participants will exchange ideas and do practical exercises in the area of affirmative action development.

For course and registration information call the extended education office of Skyline College, 355-7000, ext. 301. In the evenings and on Saturdays call 355-6580.

Sedative could be used

Animal Forum

By Dr. David R. Barnett

Question: No one can touch our dog's feet. Anyone that does is likely to get a handful of teeth. We'd like to trim his claws and perhaps remove any hair accumulation between his toes, but there isn't anyone brave enough to try. Do we have to knock him out?

M. M.

Answer: If your dog will not tolerate anyone working with his feet, then a sedative probably is the safest for everyone involved. You would have to contact your veterinarian about a tranquilizier. If your dog is still young you might gradually start handling his feet and get him accustomed to it. Then later he may not require sedation for that procedure.

Question: I would like to know if it is necessary to continue getting rabies shots for dogs 6 years or older? I heard somewhere that it was not necessary to keep it up after dogs reached this age.

E. C.

Answer: Dogs should have rabies shots every two years throughout their lives. When you consider the possible consequences for you and your family if your dog were to contract rabies, you can understand that the vaccinations are cheap insurance.

Question: Have you ever heard of toothpaste for animals? Our Collie has brown teeth and they need cleaning. How could you ever get a dog to let you brush his teeth — unless the toothpaste was flavored with steak or pork chops?

V. K.

Answer: You can use your own toothpaste and brush the dog's teeth. If you are gentle, he probably will allow you to clean the front teeth, but may object when you start on the molars. I have read of a toothpaste with steak flavor being developed for dogs, but don't know how it is accepted. If the dog has brown tartar you should have him anesthetized and the tartar cleaned off so that brushing would be more effective. Check with your veterinarian for his advice. Dental problems can be very serious and lead to other problems.

Help Wanted

PALOS VERDES SCHOOL — A tutor is needed in San Bruno two hours at a time by a retarded trainable 12-year-old girl to help with reading.

Driver of the month

"Sure I was hoping to win," says Sam Trans Driver of the Month Fanny McCowan of Pacifica, "but when it actually happened, I just couldn't believe it. It was my husband who finally convinced me it was true."

Fanny's husband, Ray, a SamTrans driver on routes 1A, C, H, L, 10T and 10L, knows the truth whereof he speaks, having preceded Fanny by winning the Transit District's driver award for the month of September.

"But I was the first to join SamTrans," Fanny says, explaining that she and Ray met while both were employed by Associated (now known as the San Francisco Bus Company). "I enjoy driving," Fanny explains, "but after six years, I was tired of driving a schoolbus."

Fanny, with weekends off to spend with four of the McCowan children who are still at home, acts as a relief driver for SamTrans, filling in for other drivers who have days off during the week. On Mondays, for example, she drives Ray's Pacifica routes; Tuesdays, it's the 3B from Stonestown to San Francisco International Airport; Wednesdays, she drives the 30B from San Bruno to Pacifica; and Thursdays and Fridays, she's in South San Francisco on the 26H.

The best thing about driving a bus, according to Fanny, is the driving itself. "I like the work, and I like this job," she says. "The next best thing would be driving a semi-truck," she says, but adds: "I haven't yet been able to afford my own rig."

Fanny wasn't born to be a bus driver, though she admits it's hard to remember a time when she wasn't behind the wheel. Hailing originally from Des Moines, Iowa, Fanny came to San Francisco in 1960 with a scholarship to study hotel and restaurant management.

"I did get started at San Francisco City College, but I soon quit to get married and it's been babies and buses ever since."

If she sticks with San Mateo County busing rather than long-haul trucking, Fanny would like to see the Transit District continue what it's doing now — "only better," she says.

Fanny does her part to conserve energy and save gas money by car-pooling to work either with Ray or with fellow drivers, and she figures that "improved service and better connections" will assure continued growth for SamTrans ridership.

CLERK COURSE

Marine Pvt. Ray F. Laurente, son of Fred and Inecita Laurente of 919 Hanover St., Daly City, has completed the Personal Financial Records Clerk Course.

During the eight-week course at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C., students were taught the fundamentals of military pay and allowances.

"Sure, I know SamTrans bus routes stop a little short of Donner Summit. But I took transit to work last week and saved enough gas to drive the whole gang to the mountains.

"Why don't you try it? Call SamTrans Information. They'll give you all the help you need.

"It really means something these days when you fill your tank. You'd better save it for the weekend."

"Jazz and all that Stuff" is the theme of tonight's Jazz Band concert at Westmoor High School. The music begins at 7:30 in the Little Theater. Rehearsing for the event are, from left, Henry Braa, Cliff Cormier and Ed Katz. Proceeds for the concert will help with expenses for a trip to Reno for an International Jazz Festival in March. Cost is $1.50. Senior citizens will be guests at the band.

Decisions due on teacher dismissals

By JOHN HORGAN

San Mateo County public school districts are preparing to decide whether to send out notices of possible dismissal to teachers by a March 15 deadline.

Dr. Julian Crocker, superintendent of the San Mateo City School District, said he is "99 percent certain" that no tenured instructors will have to be notified.

The district will probably need between 10 and 12 fewer teachers in 1980-81, he said. Resignations, retirements and sabbatical leaves should cover those positions, he said.

Dr. James Black, superintendent of the Burlingame School District, said nine letters probably will be sent.

All of those teachers, he said, are tenured.

Dr. Robert Rottman, superintendent of the San Bruno Park School District, said he doubts if dismissal letters will be mailed.

Said he, "I don't think we will." Rottman, however, has not had his contract renewed and he said he is not sure what the San Bruno trustees plan to do about teacher layoffs.

Dr. James Halcomb, superintendent of the Hillsborough City School District, said it is doubtful that any tenured teachers will receive letters.

It is possible, he said, that some temporary and probationary instructors may be informed of the possibility of layoffs.

But mandatory March 15 letters don't apply to them, Halcomb said.

Hillsborough, he said, sends dismissal letters to such teachers as a courtesy.

Dr. Edward Muehlhausen, superintendent of the Millbrae School District, said he is not sure what his district is going to do.

"We have 10 temporary teachers and they are the most vulnerable right now," he said.

But, he added, "I don't know what our board is going to decide."

Officials in the San Mateo Union High School District are also wrestling with the same situation.

One spokesman in that district said as many as 20 letters might be sent.

Carolyn Dobervich, the district's public information officer, said nothing has been decided.

"We are still trying to determine how many teachers will retire, resign or go on leave," she said.

Dr. Austin Sellery, the district's superintendent, said no layoff figure has yet been set and, he added, it has not been established that any layoffs will even be necessary.

It depends, he said, on whether the trustees continue to utilize excess teachers in a pool of "permanent substitutes."

Sellery said it is likely that the trustees may have to conduct a special meeting Feb. 14 or 21 to discuss that philosophical issue: Will it be layoff notices or another year of the sub pool?

All of the districts face the prospect of drastic cutbacks if a new initiative prepared by Howard Jarvis is approved by the California electorate this coming June.

But none of the districts contacted by The Times has calculated the effects of Jarvis II in its March 15 dismissal deliberations.

"The layoffs would have to be so disastrous that I am not going to even try to cope with it now," declared San Mateo's Crocker.

"It would be too disorienting to consider it," said Hillsborough's Halcomb.

"Our letters have nothing to do with Jarvis II," said Burlingame's Black.

By law, public school districts must inform teachers by March 15 if they are expected to be without jobs in the coming school year.

Often, districts mail notices as a hedge against difficult fiscal times and then rehire the teachers later.

But, as enrollments drop and funding becomes increasingly tight, teacher layoffs have become common in this county.

In other public school matters around the county:

• Teacher unions in the San Mateo City School District and the San Mateo Union High School District are looking for a new executive director.

The two San Mateo associations have shared a chief negotiator and bargaining agent for the last several years. However, the 1979 death of John Secor has left that position vacant.

Service agency may run child care center

By TERRY DAVENPORT

About 50 parents and teachers of children enrolled in a financially troubled child care center sponsored by San Bruno Park School District waged a strong battle this week to ensure the program's existence.

Much to their surprise, they found all but one of the trustees readily agreeing that the San Bruno Child Development Program, which is licensed by the state to tend 56 preschoolers, must be saved.

By a 4-1 vote at their Wednesday meeting, the trustees decided to try to cut the program's losses by allowing the non-profit Family Service Agency of San Mateo County to run the center, instead of a private management consultant, Del Green Associates of Foster City.

J. Donald Cameron, executive director of the Family Service Agency, said he would have to receive permission from the agency's board of directors before such a switch could be made.

But he told the trustees that he believes the organization's experience in running state-funded child care programs, as well as its ability to qualify for federally subsidized CETA employees and a free lunch program, would help steer the program into the black.

Superintendent Dr. Robert Rottman told the trustees that the program's problems in qualifying for state reimbursements resulted in a $4,900 deficit last year — the center's first year of existence — and could result in an additional $12,000 to $14,000 loss by June.

He gave the board three options:

• Continue operating the program in the present manner.

• End the district's role as prime contractor of the program, meaning that the state probably would try to find another agency to take over the contract.

• Try to find a less expensive subcontractor than Del Green Associates to operate the program.

Del Green first ran the center for a fee of $30,000 and currently is operating under a $25,000 contract with the district.

Rottman noted that Del Green would like out of its contract by Feb. 22.

A surprise twist came when he announced that board President Dan Pecoraro already had spoken with the Family Service Agency about assuming the role of subcontractor.

FSA executive director Cameron told the board that, after spending two days looking into the center, he believes there is a "good possibility" his agency's board will agree to run the program and that, if so, the center would have a chance of breaking even by June 30.

"It would be a tragedy to let this program go," he said, noting that "every research study" validates the need for more child care.

The audience applauded loudly.

The only trustee opposing the plan to have the Family Service Agency become subcontractor was Christo Pallas, who said, "Our primary responsibility in this district is to take care of the K through 8 (kindergarten through eighth-grade) children."

He warned that citizens unhappy about the additional losses that could result from the program might pressure the city of San Bruno into cutting off federal revenue-sharing funds that the city is spending on other school programs, such as after-school sports.

There were groans and protests from the audience when Pallas said that with child care "you're trying to substitute for the mother and father, and there's no substitute."

He warned the trustees, "When it's too easy to have children taken care of, it makes it easier for families to split."

But Pallas got no support for his suggestion that the district drop out of the program entirely.

Trustee Olive May Brasel said, "What Mr. Pallas missed is the fact that this is 1980. We have a large number of parents divorced, with both working."

Rottman pointed out that, if the district dropped out of the program, the center would be disrupted for 30 to 60 days while the state opened bids for another contractor to assume it.

Trustee Tony Ahoto said he believes the district has a moral obligation to continue a program that it started.

Marino Pieretti finally has his baseball field

Le Pacini

"Give Marino Pieretti a chance to smell the roses." That was the headline over this column last Nov. 7. It was referring to the proposal by Pieretti fans, friends and admirers that a baseball diamond in San Francisco be named after Pieretti in honor the former local big leaguer's literally thousands of hours of dedicated service to this area's sandlotters.

The idea was advanced that the logical diamond would be at Crocker Amazon Playground, the Pieretti neighborhood park on which he has conducted a weekly free baseball clinic for kids for years now, in good health and bad; and lately, especially, in bad. The only catch was that the San Francisco Park and Recreation Commission had a sort of tacit agreement with themselves that no parks or diamonds could be named for persons still living.

So I, along with a lot of other people, put out a plea to you fans to put the pressure on for a Pieretti Field; to convince the Park and Recreation Commission to break precident. Petitions went out, phone calls were made, letters were written, and guess what?

Dedication ceremonies for the Marino Pieretti Baseball Field at Crocker Amazon Park, Diamond No. 1, will take place on Saturday, Feb. 23, at 10 a.m.

There is justice in the world of bureaucracy, after all.

While we're still on baseball, if you're a trivia-historical-statistics nut, you'll be interested to know about new RBI standards recently approved by Baseball's Official Records Committee. It passed on recognition of two records for most consecutive games driving in at least one run.

Ray Grimes now holds the official record of 17 games, a feat accomplished in 1922. He was a right-handed hitting Chicago Cubs first baseman at the time. He was the father of Oscar Grimes, an infielder with the Indians, Yankees and Athletics over a nine year big league career. I bring the son into this because in the press release issued from the office of the commissioner, it was the son who was given credit for the record. But it couldn't have been him, because in 1922 he was 7 years old. Oh, hell. Might as well include the entire baseball geneology of the Grimes family. There also was Roy Grimes, the twin brother of Ray. He as a second baseman who played 26 games for the Giants in 1920.

The new American League record holder in that category is Taft Wright, the left handed hitting outfielder who kept all the records in the windy city by driving in runs in 13 straight games for the White Sox in 1941.

The previously recognized major league mark was 12, by Paul Waner in 1927, Joe Cronin in 1939 and Ted Williams in 1942.

* * *

Mark Harris, who has written the best quartet of sports novels I have ever read (among them the classic "Bang the Drum Slowly") is out with another book, a compilation of some of he best magazine articles (and a few short stories) he has written over the years. It is entitled, "Short Work of It." (University of Pittsburgh Press.)

If you're wondering what a mention of a non-fiction book is doing in a sports column, it is because six of the articles are on baseball, and if you are a baseball fan, those six articles alone are worth the price of the book.

My two favorites are the ones on Dick Stuart, (who later became the homerun hitting Dr. Strangeglove of the Pirates) which originally appeared in Life in 1957, and Eddie Cereghino, (who later became the principal of Jefferson High School) which was in Sports Illustrated in 1959.

These are my favorite for several reasons. They are, for one thing, vintage Harris prose, which is good. They are, as is usually the style of Harris, as much comments on society as on individual baseball players, without one element getting in the way of the other. They are about two people against whom I played sandlot, high school and semi-pro ball (Stuart from San Carlos, and Cereghino, of course, from Daly City). And I also like the stories because I was personally involved in the writing of both of them.

During that time period I often served Harris as a sort of research assistant. He was busy writing novels and was "hot" as a magazine writer of sports. He always needed a lot of help on small details, and that's where I came in; reading old newspapers and magazine articles, interviewing minor characters for him, etc.

I especially enjoyed re-reading the Cereghino piece, because it was I who gave Harris the idea for the story. At the time, Eddie has just retired from pro ball and was re-enrolled at San Francisco State College, working on a teaching credential. Harris was teaching creative writing at S.F. State, and didn't realize that Cereghino was the same kid who a decade before had become the Yankees' highest paid bonus baby and the last signee of the legendary New York scout, Joe Devine.

I told him, "Hey, author, you're sitting on a great story." He talked to Eddie, and then contacted Sports Illustrated about the kid who had given up the glamor of pro ball to become a teacher, and that, roughly, is how the story evolved.

It turned into one of the best pieces of non-fiction material on sports I have ever read, and I was, and am, proud to have been a small part of it.

If you're a USF buff, following are some stats which you might find interesting.

Unlike recent high scoring teams, this one is fourth in scoring, overall, among WCAC teams, and FIFTH in conference scoring. LIKE some of the great teams in the distant past however, they are tough on defense — tops overall, third in conference games.

They lead the WCAC in rebounding for conference games, are second overall.

Back to that played-down offense, they are eighth in field goal percentage overall, seventh in league games; fifth and seventh, respectively, in the free throwing.

Quintin Dailey is the only USF player who appears fairly high on thhe overall scoring list, and that he's 14th. He is, however, third in the league in conference games.

Wallace Bryant does top everybody in the conference in rebounding, he is second in blocked shots.

LOCAL NOTE: Don Delbon, a vice principal at Terra Nova High School, recently viewed a Jefferson High vs. Mills game with mixed emotions.

Delbon was a basektball league Player of the Year for Jefferson in 1954 (as well as being an all-league quarterback and baseball pitcher) and now Don's son, Dave, is one of Mills' top athletes, and probably most outstanding basketball player. The kid has learned well from Dead-Eye Don.

Jeff, incidentally, won that game, but Dave was outstanding, providing daddy Don a nice compromise.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: It was bad enough that a San Francisco team had to vie with a Detroit team to see who would get the top NFL draft choice, but must the two cities now repeat history for the top NBA draft pick?

53-52 over Serramonte

Williams paces Westmoor's narrow win

By TIM MENICUTCH

Westmoor and Serramonte high schools basketball teams are similar in many ways.

Both clubs thrive on a fast and furious pace. The two squads like to rely on quick, accurate-shooting guards to generate most of the offense.

But Westmoor has a "big" difference . . . 6-5 center Troy Williams. Serramonte's tallest player is 6-3.

Williams did most of the damage Monday to Serramonte's bid to knock off the undefeated Rams. Williams collected eight points and five rebounds in the decisive, up-for-grabs fourth quarter as Westmoor hung on for a 53-52 win in a North Peninsula League upper-division battle.

Westmoor improved its first-place record to 10-0 (16-3 overall); while Serramonte slipped to 7-3 (12-6 overall).

In the early going, Williams seemed the least likely hero. In the first three quarters Williams had just six points and seven rebounds.

Westmoor Coach Tony Giammona took Willaims out in the third quarter for what appeared to be a breather, but Williams told the real reason why: "Coach asked me why the heck I wasn't being more productive on the court. He said that since I was playing against such a small team I should be getting more points and rebounds. When the fourth quarter rolled around, I realized that it was my job. I just had to put my mind to it.

"They (Williams' teammates) were looking for me inside most of the game. But it wasn't that easy. Serramonte was doing a good job of sagging on me.

"Since I hadn't done much in the first three quarters, Seramonte started double-teaming Derrick (Johnson)," said Williams. "It left me wide open."

While Williams broke loose in the final stanza, always-impressive guard Derrick Johnson was the mainstay of Westmoor's offense early. Johnson collected game-high 21 points, all in the first three quarters. In the fourth period Johnson played defense, and one play sticks out.

Serramonte's slick guard Darryl Williams stole a pass with 2:57 left and Westmoor leading by one, 49-48. Williams appeared to have an uncontested lay-up, when suddenly Johnson, in a blur, caught Williams from behind and snuffed the would-be two pointer. Serramonte was charged with a traveling violation after inbounding.

After Westmoor missed a shot, Serramonte's high scorer, Marcus Jones (19 points), canned a bomb to give the Regents the lead. Westmoor's Adrian Waters, who had a fine overall game with 11 points and four steals, nailed a baseline jumper to put Westmoor ahead, 51-50.

Serramonte's Curtis Alexander countered with a tip-in. Westmoor scored the final points when Williams drove from almost mid-court and put up an errant hook shot. He grabbed his own rebound and scored. But there was still 1:12 left.

Serramonte missed a shot and Waters was fouled on the rebound. He missed the front end of a one-and-one, Alexander rebounded and Serramonte called time out with 0:38 remaining.

Serramonte worked the clock down to 0:10, took a shot and missed, rebounded and took another shot that hit the rim and bounded away as the clock ran out.

Westmoor has now won two straight one point games over title contenders. Two years ago, the Rams downed previously undefeated Jefferson on a last second shot.

"One thing about this team," said Williams. "We never give up. I don't really like these one point games, but it doesn't really matter as long as we keep on winning."

Mackey regains touch as Jeff gears for the stretch

By RICK EYMER

Jefferson High's Ken Mackey had "lost" his scoring magic.

That was felt when North Peninsula League Basketball favorite Jeff lost to Westmoor and came close to dropping a game with Half Moon Bay.

Jefferson was a little down and a little flat. Nothing like one of the top teams in the county, as originally billed.

Then came a 20-point win over South San Francisco and maybe a loosening of the joints.

Then the Indians scored a 92-64 win over visiting Oceana Monday.

Mackey regained his shooting touch with a flourish, going for 22 points (canning 10 of 12 shot attempts from the floor), while grabbing nine rebounds. He got plenty of help from teammates Zachary Alexander (17 points, six boards), Ernest Dupree (12 points), Freddie Burks (10 points, five assists) and Richard Rodgers (10 points, three assists).

Jefferson raised its NPL mark to 9-1 (15-3 overall).

All Jeff has to do now is build its momentum until the final confrontation with Westmoor at season's end. It's what the Indians are working toward.

"Our last three games will be the toughest," said Jeff Coach Bud Bresnahan. "We are working hard to be 6-0 in the second half of the season, going into the Westmoor game. It will all come down to who plays most consistently."

After visiting El Camino Wednesday (3:15 p.m.), the Indians run into a tough schedule. First there's Serramonte (7-3 in the NPL after losing to Westmoor Monday, 53-52), then Terra Nova (also 7-3) and finally Westmoor.

"We got a small break in the schedule this week," Bresnahan said. "The other contenders had tough games."

Once the Indians got into their running game against Oceana, it was over. Not many teams have Jefferson's speed, and no one likes to up the tempo quite like the Indians.

The Indians had 13 team assists, most of them a direct result of a two-on-one or three-on-one fast break, and just 14 turnovers — nine through the first three quarters.

"It was a good team effort," Bresnahan said. "The shots were dropping, and when they do, the tempo really doesn't matter. We weren't playing with a great deal of intensity but we got our game going."

For Oceana, Eric Claybon continued his prolific scoring with 23 points, while Marcel Gabriel chipped in 15.

With Mackey finding the mark again, the Indians may be tough to beat, particularly with Alexander back in the lineup after a bout with bronchitis.

"Mackey is a great team player," Bresnahan said. "He has been in a shooting slump, but was still able to contribute with his passing and rebounding ability. His shooting was on today, and with Dupree being off a little, it helped.

"Oceana has some good ballplayers. But I don't think they have much depth. Claybon is as good as anyone in the league, but they lack depth," said Bresnahan.

Oceana (1-9), 3-14) hosts Half Moon Bay Wednesday at 3:15 p.m.

Jeff wins soccer title

Jefferson wraped up the North Peninsula League soccer crown Monday, completing an undefeated season with a 3-0 whitewash of visiting Oceana.

Jefferson (6-0-1) heads into Wednesday's eight-team NPL playoffs as the only team which must be defeated twice to be eliminated. Jefferson is slated to meet winless Westmoor at 3:15.

Jefferson got goals from Fred Proano, Carlos Barba and Jose Lopez.

In other action, El Camino nabbed second place with a 1-0 decision over fourth-place Terra Nova. Dan Piazza scored the game's lone goal. El Camino goalkeeper Mark Galistus recorded the save.

Half Moon Bay finished in third place with a 2-0 blanking of Westmoor. Johnny Lourenco scored both of HMB's goals.

South City finished the season with a 2-2 tie against host Serramonte.

SSF leads, earns a 'dubious' honor

South San Francisco's girls basketball team broke up a three-team tie for first in the North Peninsula League by beating rivals Jefferson and Terra Nova in back-to-back games last week.

Thus, the Warriors climb back to the top of the County rankings. SSF last had the dubious honor of holding the No. 1 ranking on Jan. 2. This is the seventh week of the rankings and each team previously ranked No. 1 has lost a game the following week.

After an absence of three weeks, Mercy of Burlingame returns to the rankings after an upset defeat of Carlmont. Half Moon Bay makes their first-ever appearance in the rankings.

Belli sets TN mark

By MARY D'AGOSTINO

Terra Nova High took a long step to post-season play in the North Peninsula League Monday, defeating host El Camino, 84-48.

The win just about assures the Tigers a berth in the basketball playoffs. Terra Nova now owns a 7-3 league mark with four games remaining to play. The Tigers are four games ahead fifth-place Half Moon Bay and South San Francisco.

In Monday's win over the Colts, Terra Nova was still without the services of center Mike Pedro, recovering from an injured ankle. It didn't matter.

Rich Belli took on all the added responsibility and dominated the inside against the smaller El Camino squad, scoring 39 points and grabbing 15 rebounds.

The 39 points is a Terra Nova school record.

"I normally don't play when we get up by so much," Belli said. "But the coach left me in to try for the record."

The Tigers were never in trouble after opening a 15-5 first-quarter lead. Terra Nova outscored the Colts in every period.

The lone El Camino player the Tigers had trouble stopping was Carl Rhodes, who went for 21 points, the most any Colt has accumulated since the injury to pivotman Mike Bigham several weeks ago.

For Terra Nova, Mike Childs and Marty Charlton each contributed 10 points to the Tigers' offensive output.

Terra Nova forced a lot of El Camino turnovers throughout the contest, getting easy shots as a result.

"It's nice to see us play so well without Pedro," Tiger Coach Gary Johnson said. "It gives us momentum going into the Serramonte game."

About the only thing that could have slowed Terra Nova down was the power failure that hit El Camino, leaving the scoreboard and clock useless. A chalkboard was rolled in to keep track of the score.

Pedro is expected to see action in the Serramonte game for the Tigers. Meanwhile, Belli handles the additional burdens well.

Belli's 39 points eclipsed the old Tiger record of 32.

Terra Nova (7-3 in the NPL, 12-6 overall) hosts Serramonte at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday, while El Camino (0-10, 2-16) hosts second-place Jefferson at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday.

"What is going on here — in California — is the disintegration of a state that should have been the brightest and the best, the corruption of the Promised Land."

Kenneth Lamott

"We're going to show those birds they can't X&*!! with California."

Howard Jarvis

California's misuse of the initiative so begrimes her constitution, it prompted a speaker at a recent conference to refer to it as the gravestone of good government and as the tool used by special interests to lock-in the measures they prefer.

Speaking of the misuse of the initiative, Professors Winston W. Crouch and John C. Bollens of the University of California wrote, "The initiative, like the referendum, is an exceedingly expensive procedure. In a state the size of California the task of circulating a petition is so great that large scale political organization is necessary for success. Several businesses have sprung up specializing in obtaining signatures to petitions. A dozen or so public relations firms specialize in putting on campaigns necessary to advertise the reasons why the voters should vote yes or no on a proposition. All of this is very expensive and can be afforded only by large, well-financed groups. The campaigns become so confusing that the voter has a difficult time determining if Right to Work or Swat the Oil Hog is for his best interests or against them.

"California is almost unique in its use of the initiative and in the campaigning that has become associated with it," Crouch and Bollens continue.

The detailed political strategy planning is different from that visualized by the Progressives who sponsored the direct legislation plan in 1911. That group believed the process they were advocating would permit citizens to express their concern about policy matters spontaneously. They did not anticipate the growth in the number of voters that has taken place, a condition which requires management of large-scale campaigns and orderly scheduling of details such as verifying signatures, preparing ballots, conducting campaigns on votes on complex subjects with the aid of numerous media — all of which tend to subordinate spontaneity of political action, planning and scheduling.

Because of the campaigning, the approval or disapproval of an initiative depends more upon emotion than reason. Harpies of special interests lure voters to decide everything from the length of freight trains to how voters shall be registered.

"The first initiative law that was adopted," Crouch and Bollens reveal, "approved the states' borrowing money to build classroom buildings at the University of California. Another prohibited prize fighting; but this was changed a few years later to permit boxing and wrestling for prizes. Another initiative set forth the methods of licensing chiropractors to perform their work. Another prohibited fishing boats operating in California waters from catching fish for the purpose of making them into fertilizer."

Thinking people know that if the Howard Jarvises and Paul Ganns believed in "our" system of government they would devote their effort to the election of action-oriented persons to the legislature and legislative reform if that is necessary. Thinking people know that the originators of endless initiatives are people who do not believe in a republican form of government or do not know how it is supposed to work.

Before they vote on any more initiatives, many California voters would do well to consult with a few texts on California government. Among those in print are "Your California Government in Action," by Winston W. Crouch and John C. Bollens (University of California); "A Guide to California Government," from the League of Women Voters, 1977 edition ($3.70); "The Challenge of California," by Eugene C. Lee and Willis D. Hawley (Little, $3.95); and "California Government and Politics" by Crouch, Bollens and Scott, 6th edition (Prentice, $5.50).

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Don't all of you faithful dieters feel a little smug? Here it is Heart Month, and here are all the scary annual statistics. But you've already solved your problem. Congratulations, the smuggery fits you better than the former snuggery.

Now some of you found your way to dieting through medical scare. But many of you joined the club for purely vanity reasons. In this case, vanity's a virtue because it can be a lifesaver (the non-sugared variety). You chose diet of your own free will; it wasn't forced upon you.

Now honestly, has it been that bad? If you've been following my gems of widom, you've had luscious desserts on your way to a luscious figure. If you've eaten a well-balanced meal, you've found it as satisfying as it is satisfying to buy a new wardrobe in prgressively smaller sizes. You've been able to fulfill your food cravings and your cravings for a better appearance all at the same time.

Add in the plus that you've cut down the probability as a candidate for a heart attack, and you've earned your smugness.

As a reward for your spectacular effort to be kind to your own heart, toast your efforts with this at cocktail time:

COPA DE ORA

8 oz. lo-cal lemon soda
2 oz. crushed pineapple
2 oz. unsweetened pineapple juice (use fruit packed in its own juice along with its juice)
½ capful cocnut extract
1 capful rum extract
Crushed ice or 2 ice cubes
Sprig of mint (optional)

Pour everything into a blender, blend half a minute or until frothy. Serve with sprig of mint.

Now that you've accomplished so much for yourself, why not do a friend a favor? Pass along the information and the recipes that have helped you. Practive your diplomacy on a recalcitrant fattie. A genuine show of concern might just get a reluctant dieter off on the right food and the right diet.

For low-calorie snacks, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116.

Nell Norton

As a money saver, chicken is great. And when chicken dishes are prepared with a delicious canned chicken gravy, a meal can be easy, tasty and economical.

Ginger Chicken is a perfect example. In this entree, the golden rich canned gravy blends the spicy sweet flavor of ginger with the crispness of water chestnuts. It's a delicious and easy way to prepare chicken and gravy with an Oriental touch.

GINGER CHICKEN

2 pounds chicken parts
2 tablspoons shortening
1 can (10½ ounces) chicken gravy
1 cup sliced carrots
¼ pound sliced fresh mushrooms (about 1 cup)
½ cup thinly sliced water chestnuts
1 teaspoon soy sauce
¼ teaspoon ground ginger

In a skillet, brown the two pounds chicken parts in the two tablespoons shortening; pour off fat. Add the one can chicken gravy, one cup sliced carrots, fourth pound sliced mushrooms, half cup sliced water chestnuts, teaspoon soy sauce and fourth teaspoon ginger. Cover; cook over low heat 45 minutes or until done. Stir occasionally.

Thicken if desired.

Makes 4 servings.

Alfredo's dinner special seven days

Returning by popular demand, a choice of New York Steak, Half Roast Chicken, or Veal Parmagiana is offered on the Dinner Special seven days a week at ALFREDO'S restaurant in downtown San Mateo. All are served with soup or salad bar, pasta and French bread for only $4.95. Also super is the Salad Bar ... LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco is a discovery for gourmets on a budget. The American and continental cuisine is delicious, and dinner patrons can select from specialties such as Papaya Chicken and Poached Salmon. Dinners start at $7.95 (gourmet salad bar included); lunches are priced from about $3.75 ... Many rare records of the 40s and 50s are played on the old-fashioned Wurlitzer juke box in the cocktail lounge of LA PINATA restaurant, Burlingame. The juke box has a completely new sound system ... Edith and John Carlson of Cupertino recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City ... One of the specialties which draws connoisseurs of gourmet seafood to CAPTAIN CHARLES restaurant at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is Scampi Bercy (scampi sauteed with chopped shallots, white wine and cooked in a well-seasoned fish veloute). This posh surfside restaurant is one of the three great restaurants (NICK'S and THE MOONRAKER) owned/operated by the GUST family. JOE ERCOLI JR. carries on THE LEANING TOWER's tradition of fine dining begun by founder Francois Ercoli a quarter of a century ago and following his father JOE ERCOLI, who is the big boss at this South San Francisco restaurant which features Italian food in the Tuscany style. Joe Jr., along with his gracious wife CHRIS, sees to the lunch and dinnersatisfaction of the large and loyal clientele.

GIFT OF GAB

Versatile Lori Shannon's special brand of humor is still delighting audiences at Finocchio's, a famed North Beach nightspot that has consistently offered top quality entertainment and great value for your recreation dollar. Finocchio's is open daily, except Mondays and Thursdays, for four nightly shows.

Cypress House is famed landmark

For good seafood, beef and spirits, the road leads just "over the hill" from the mid-Peninsula, via Highway 92, to the famed old landmark CYPRESS HOUSE in Half Moon Bay. A lavish Sunday brunch is offered from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and dinners are served from 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays. Don't miss the dinner special on Wednesday and Thursday nights ... When you order with care, gourmet dining in elegant surroundings can be surprisingly moderate in cost, says VINCENZO LO GRASSO, chef/owner of the sophisticated DAL BAFFO European restaurant in Menlo Park. His exquisite parchment-and-gold menu offers many selections which are prepared to serve two. Vincenzo also is pleased to have patrons share or "split" an entree, as portions are generous ... RAY PLUNKETT, who operates RAY PLUNKETT'S TAHOE MARINER hotel/casino in North Lake Tahoe, has been active in the area for almost 30 years ... Crab Legs and Prawns with rice blended and cooked in casserole is very often the dinner choice at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant in San Mateo. There are about a dozen different casserole combinations on the menu and all are served with vegetables or French fries. Ample free parking.

The Greenhouse at Delaware Station

A new dining experience in exotic surroundings awaits you when you discover the Weekend Brunch at THE GREENHOUSE Restaurant at Delaware Station in San Mateo (on South Delaware near 19th Avenue). Brunch is served on Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and there are two optional brunches ... In addition to the Pay-By-Ounce steaks and gourmet steak dishes featured at PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, dynamic owner PHIL LEHR also features an excellent selection of gourmet continental specialties, such as stuffed pork chops topped with apple and cherry sauce ... Singer Nancy Wilson, headlining in the FAIRMONT'S Venetian Room, had heads swiveling at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in San Francisco when she stopped by for a preperformance dinner ... Pizzas are a perennially popular attraction at ROMANO'S, the quaint Old World-style Italian dinner house and bistro at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Sixteen different varieties are offered in three sizes to be enjoyed in the dining room or for take out ... A savory German dish you should really try at TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT, in Moss Beach, is Sauerbraten and Noodles, with Sweetsauer Red Cabbage. Another authentic German dish is Rouladen (rolled beef with combination meat filling) with noodles and red cabbage.

Testimonial to quality and taste of ROSE PATRUNO'S home cooking at her VILLA ROSA Italian restaurant in Redwood City is the fact that on Mondays and Tuesdays (when many other restaurants are closed) many of the waiters, waitresses, bartenders and even chefs drop by for dinner. Villa Rosa is open seven days a week. Special news: Rose is offering $1 off any dinner if you just mention "Bright Lights" (offer good through March 18).

The 1950s are back — at Jeff

By ROSIE TEJADA, KAREN WONG and BERNARD THOMAS

Poodle skirts, roller skates, leather jackets and greased-back hair were a part of Jefferson's annual 1950s Day Jan. 25, highlighted by a rally featuring the pep staff doing routines to 1950s music. The 1960s music, however, did surface.

Lance and the Third Street Juniors (Lance Martin, Anthony Fuller, Sam Smith and Baris Mitchell) harmonized to "Duke of Earl." An uncontrolled "teenybopper," English teacher Linda Clemons, raced onto the floor, clawing at a shocked Martin, who calmly continued singing amidst screams, oohs and aahs.

Roslyn Hamilton, Lisa Winston and Lori Ann Woods sang to "Baby Love."

Participating in slam-dunk competition were Dwight Wilson, Jay Williams, Zack Alexander and Richard Rodgers. Alexander received a pair of blue and gold socks for his second-place performance. Rodgers won a t-shirt for placing first. Jefferson alumni and former high school basketball superstar Darryl Jackson made a guest appearance.

Frank Famero won the rally's spirit points for the senior class in a banana split-eating contest. Famero edged out junior Louie Pezzola. Soph Gwynn Wilson came in third and freshman Gigit Zamora finished last.

"Sha Na Na," featuring some Jeff alumnus and a lip-synched saxophone solo by Rick Huertas, also performed.

MID-TERM GRADUATES

Jefferson mid-term graduates who graduated Jan. 31 are: Jacqueline Alexander, John Matthew Aquino, Michael Aven, Devery Benevidez, Janice Anita Browning, Kevin Louie Chan, Jeannette Caontapay, Edward Coorea, Tani Suzan Empleo, Julio Ferraro, Theresa Garon, Stephen Hartje, Bernadette Hayward, Christopher Albert Lawrence, Eloy Lucero, Athanasia Merkouris, Diane Odello, Tambra Olivier, Rosario Rodriguez, Robert Rosgnuolo, Vicky Vallerga, Lorraine Wilson, La'Tonva Wright and Deanna Wuertz.

CLUBS

"Goodbye" to International Club president Athanasia Merkouris and "hello" to new president Luana Jeffries, formerly vice president. Merkouris, being president for 1½ years, ended her term when she graduated from high school last week.

For many years the International Club had not been too active. Ice skating and bowling were two of the few activities of this club. Involvement is now the word, and that is what the club is doing. Right now members are selling flowergrams to students for 50 cents. The flowergrams will be given out on Valentine's Day.

The club also is planning to have a sidewalk case booth which would sell most kinds of foods.

FILM ON DANCING

"America Dances: A Fast-Stepping History," a film sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Company of San Francisco and radio station KFRC, was viewed by Jefferson students, Jan. 28.

The film, narrated by Redd Foxx, was an amusing and informative double-screen routine following the history of popular dance in America with the hypothesis that popular music reflects the attitudes in society.

The show began with the "Minuet" which characterized the social rule that men and women should not touch. Waltzing was the first step toward touching, then came the unthinkable "Tango" and Rudolph Valentino.

The Roaring Twenties brought about the craze of the "Charleston," and the "Lindy Hop," named after the famed aviator Charles Lindbergh, because it "sent your partner flying."

The Depression of 1929 introduced Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, who showed that they could take things in ease.

World War II was a time of the "Jitterbug," bobby-soxers, Ellington, Basie, Goodman and a thing called "swing."

Rock 'n' Roll surfaced with Little Richard, Chuck Berry, Buddy Holly and Elvis Presley, whose pelvic gesticulations symbolized a form of independence.

Chubby Checker and the twist came along as the 1960s introduced a decade of violence: Vietnam, Woodstock, protest, and Civil Rights movements.

Disco and roller disco updated the film.

Jefferson students were given the chance to win prizes for correctly answering questions on the film. Winning six-packs of Pepsi-Cola were Cynthia Miller, Lorraine Wilson, Amy Lansang, Becky Schurr and Roger Esponilla.
